

Dr. David Collins completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Central Arkansas in Conway, Arkansas. He received a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in biology and chemistry. After graduation Dr. Collins worked with pharmaceutical giant Pfizer Corporation for four years where he learned to work with most medical specialties.

Dr. Collins is a proud graduate of the Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa. Palmer Chiropractic is the founding school of the chiropractic profession. Since graduation, Dr. Collins has been on the relentless pursuit of postgraduate education and specialty training. He has completed extensive training in orthopedics, neurology, neck and lower back disc decompression, spinal biomechanics, accident reconstruction, laser treatments, neuropathy management and MRI interpretation. His biggest accomplishment however, at the time of this writing he is one of only 80 doctors who has completed a 2-year fellowship program in spinal biomechanics and trauma. (FSBT). This program is taught through Cleveland College of Chiropractic in association with the State University of New York at Buffalo, Jacobs School of Medicine and Spinal Biomechanics. Dr. Collins was the 3rd doctor to complete this fellowship. He was selected as one of only 14 chiropractors in the country to be invited to attend the first Summit Multidisciplinary Spinal Conference at the Sundance Resort in Utah in September of 2020 that was attended by 100 neurosurgeons, orthopedic surgeons, and pain management physicians. He has been re-invited each year since.

Since graduation from Palmer, he has worked with professional athletes from all over the world. He has treated All pro-NFL players, MLB players, professional golfers, top 10 ranked professional tennis players, multiple high school, and college-level athletes from many different sports. He has also treated gold and silver medalist in track and field from Olympic Games.

Dr. Collins practiced in the Memphis TN area where he raised his family for many years before moving to Naples in 1998. He is the proud father of three children and six grandchildren and is an active member of First Baptist Church Naples.
